A "Rally for Success" will be held March 30 at the Central Correctional Institution in Columbia, S.C., for the purpose of encouraging many of the 1,700 inmates there to enroll in high school or college courses offered by the Department of Corrections and to meet with school admission officials who will be on hand to interview them. Another purpose of the rally is to launch a statewide drive to raise funds for scholarships for former inmates to attend South Carolina college and technical schools. A scholarship board has been established made up of 24 professional and business representatives including William C. Nau, chief U.S. probation officer for the District of South Carolina.

Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst announced December 28 that serious crime in the United States increased 1 percent during the first 9 months of 1972—the smallest increase since the FBI began issuing quarterly reports in 1960. During the same period of 1971, serious crime increased 6 percent. He also reported that 83 major cities recorded actual decreases in serious crime during the January-September period, compared with 52 cities during the same period of 1971.

Planning and Designing for Juvenile Justice has recently been published under a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration by the Management and Behavioral Science Center, University of Pennsylvania, in collaboration with Wallace McHarg, Roberts and Todd, and David C.S. Polk, consultant. It is a reference text to assist corrections professionals and others interested in juvenile justice to develop their own capabilities for planning and implementing changes. Single copies are available without charge from the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, Washington, D.C. 20530.

Albert Elias, superintendent of the Youth Reception and Correction Center, Yardville, N.J., has been appointed executive deputy director of the New York State Division for Youth. He was a former superintendent at Highfields Residential Group Center and coauthored, with Lloyd McCorkle, The Highfields Story.

The Journal of Criminal Law, Criminology and Police Science has published its Cumulative Index covering Volumes 1 through 61, 1910 to 1970. Copies are available at $15 each from The Williams and Wilkins Company, 728 E. Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21202.

The 1973 Canadian Congress of Criminology and Corrections will be held June 24 to 29 at the Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, Sask. Theme of the Congress will be "Crime in the Seventies: New Perspectives on an Old Problem."

James A. Gardner of Arlington, Va., has been appointed chief deputy U.S. marshal for the Central District of California at Los Angeles. As chief deputy, he will function as administrative head of that office which, with its 85 employees, is fourth largest of the 94 U.S. marshals offices in the Nation.

Bernard Kogon, training officer in the Los Angeles County Probation Department, retired in October after 21 years of County service. He is a graduate of the College of the City of New York and holds a law degree from Brooklyn Law School and a master's in social work from Columbia University. Prior to joining the Probation Department, he was assistant director at the Edenwald School for Boys in New York City.

The 10th Council of Europe Conference of Directors of Criminological Research Institutes was held November 28 to December 1 in Strasbourg. Theme of the Conference was "Violence in Society."

More than 8,000 volunteers—in the past 2 years—have donated services worth over $1.8 million to police, courts, and corrections agencies, according to a recent report of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. The report, Volunteers in Law Enforcement Programs, was prepared by LEAA's Program and Management Evaluation Division, Office of Operations Support. A limited supply is available from the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, Washington, D.C. 20530.

The California Defenders Association has received a $33,000 grant from the California Council on Criminal Justice to present an Advanced Criminal Law Program for experienced attorneys in the State's defender offices. The program will be held in January at the University of San Diego.

Don R. Derning, chief of police of Winnetka, Ill., since 1953, was elected president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at the Association's 79th Annual Conference at Salt Lake City, Utah, October 14 to 19. He succeeds George A. Murphy, chief of police of Oneida, N.Y.
